ROLEPLAY FETISH
DILLYMORE'S, 8PM

Well, my darlings, I'm having another birthday. What a lot of changes have happened since we opened the bar!

Choose one of the following you remember, everyone.

The rainbow flag went up

That glass-walled place opened (unlike our dark little hole)

Brunch happened (yes I know)

Everyone is "queer" now rather than "gay"

"Safe spaces" and no unwanted touching

The drag fans arrived

The hen dos arrived

Then everyone started getting younger

And we realised we were the older ones

...and tell us how you felt about it.

Anyway, celebrate with me on 4 July, you know the address by now. Dress smart you cheap fuckers.

LAST NIGHT AT DILLYMORE'S

Dillymore's in Turnpike Lane closed at midnight on Saturday, after one last raucous and raunchy night.

Many of us in North London have fond memories of the pub, even as it became priced out of the area and overshadowed by the glossier venues around it.

Please leave your memories of Dillymore's - in the form of cards, messages, objects, poems or whatever you want to bring - outside the door in Turnpike Lane, any time in the next week.

If you cannot make it to Turnpike Lane, feel free to start your own tribute at a site of your choice or online.

In one week, everything will be cleared away, so be quick!

- ① KNOW WHO YOU ARE
- ② REMEMBER PLAYMATEZ
- ③ REMEMBER CHANGES THAT HAPPENED
- ④ CHOOSE A SITE (ONLINE/PHYSICAL) VISIT. LEAVE A MEMORY. KEEP VISITING FOR A WEEK. BE INSPIRED, LEAVE MORE. AFTER A WEEK, CLEAR THE SITE.
