

Ginger: The literal fox in the henhouse. A vegetarian fox undergoing immersion therapy, you have been here a few weeks, living off of the cracked corn and millet. Once in a while you get a hunger for chicken meat, but you have successfully fought it off so far. Occasionally you sneak out of the coop to munch on cabbage and cucumbers, but you always come back before anyone notices. You used to run with a Wolf but those days have been over since you turned over your new dietary leaf. Life in the chicken coop isn't so bad, though the chickens tend to rise earlier than you like, and Farmer Brown needs to warm his hands better when he checks under you for eggs. None of the chickens suspect you of being anything other than a hen, and you manage to steal enough eggs to keep the farmer fooled. You have been occasionally chick sitting for Priscilla though it has been getting hard to not snatch one or two of the chicks up and eat them.

The Other Chickens

Ace	He's pretty sharp, and one of the highest in the pecking order, you had best stay out of conflict with him lest you blow your cover.
Boo	You think he suspects that you are not a chicken. If you are not careful, he will expose you and you may have to try to get away.
Carhorn	He's as dumb as he is loud. And boy is he loud. He has made passes at you, but you have been successful at directing him toward Henrietta
Chick Little	This guy is as paranoid as they get. He hangs around with Boo and they tend to make each other's issues get much worse. He probably needs therapy, you could always recommend your therapist.
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could kick your butt if he put a mind to it. He is easily distracted though, last time he caught you sneaking out, you said "Hey look! It's Farmer Brown!" and he spent an hour looking for him.
Darcy	She's not a chicken. It is really hard not to sink your teeth into the succulent fatty duck flesh and taste the spicy... No! You are a vegetarian now!
Floyd	He's a very strange one. He dropped a glowing stick the other night, when your old buddy the Wolf showed up to tempt you into letting him in. You didn't see who picked it up but Floyd seems to be looking very hard for something.
Ginger	That's you! Still the prettiest!

Henny	She has a lot of chicks, though she also keeps a pretty close eye on them, so you aren't as tempted to eat them. (you would get caught!)
Henrietta	The widow! Ace and Carhorn seem dead set on marrying her, though she demands that her suitors be friendly toward her socially disinterested offspring, Junior.
Junior	A strange boy, wants to learn Engineering. He is also attracted to Darcy the duck. Mmmm Duck....
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old English Bird. You suspect he might be able to figure out that you are a fox if you talk too long to him, but you try to be pleasant and excuse yourself quickly.
Lyle	He has a secret, he likes to watch the stars and sneak out of the coop at night. There is more, but you haven't figured it out yet.
Penny	She has been talking to Priscilla a lot and Priscilla has been trying to convince her to ask you to watch her chicks for her. You really hope she doesn't go through with it, since you aren't sure you could resist eating them, and you think she counts them obsessively.
Priscilla	That busybody! She is an awful mother hen! She dumps her chicks off on you all the time, and they are the worst behaved chicks in the coop! You could eat one or two and she would probably not notice, but you are a vegetarian now...

The Pecking Order:

The pecking order is not really important to you, so you can choose to give your number up to anyone who wants to challenge you, if you wish. You may not challenge for position.

You may choose to redraw the first losing hand of a series.

Floyd: You come from planet Zurburbia. Your ship focused on the one creature it thought intelligent enough to rule the planet and gave you that form. As you found out, chickens are not the rulers of the world nor are they all that bright. You now know your computer was being lazy and just picked the first creature with something more than a primitive ganglion. You are a little vexed but you think you can use this to your advantage, since the tall pink beings continually bring food to the feathered beings you now live with, and you can plot your escape when no one is looking. However, you need to find your Miffle key so you can get back on to your ship. Your Miffle Key looks like a glowing stick. You dropped it when the Chickens went into a panic due to there being a Wolf at the Door the other night. You really do not care about the pecking order of the place, but Chick Little and the one they call Junior are very interesting. Junior appears to be naturally gifted in engineering. He might be able to help you

The Other Chickens

Ace	He's pretty sharp, and one of the highest in the pecking order, he has been pretty cock sure of himself since Charlie left.
Boo	You think he suspects that you are not a chicken. If you are not careful, he will expose you and you may have to try to get away.
Carhorn	He's as dumb as he is loud. And boy is he loud. He leaves you alone for the most part, but you don't think he knows how to talk to Junior.
Chick Little	This guy is as paranoid as they get. He hangs around with Boo and they tend to make each other's issues get much worse. On your planet he would be mind wiped.
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could kick your butt if he put a mind to it. He is easily distracted though, last time he caught you snooping in other people's nests, you said "Hey Look! It's a giant Fargitator!" He spent the next day looking for it.
Darcy	She's not like other chickens. This chicken has webbed feet for one thing, and a flat beak. You are very glad your computer didn't make you look like this one.
Floyd	That's you! Still the most dashing explorer ever!
Ginger	This chicken is not like the others. You have seen this one sneaking out to eat in the garden, and it seems to be fighting the urge to eat the young. A cannibal perhaps?

Henny	She has a lot of chicks who are very well behaved, you wonder what is wrong with her, she is not like the others.
Henrietta	The widow! Ace and Carhorn seem dead set on marrying her, though she demands that her suitors be friendly toward her fantastically gifted offspring, Junior.
Junior	This young fellow is as smart as they come, and you would like to offer him a place on your ship when you find your miffle key.
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	He talks strangely, and is often talking about manners and the “Proper, British, way” to do things. You don’t think he likes you.
Lyle	He has a secret, he likes to watch the stars and sneak out of the coop at night. There is more, but you haven’t figured it out yet.
Penny	This hen is not much trouble, compared to Priscilla. She occasionally lets her offspring get too far from her and they occasionally annoy you. She seems to count them obsessively.
Priscilla	She talks about everyone, most of it not good. You hope the wolf at the dor gets her.

The Pecking Order:

The pecking order is not really important to you, so you can give your number up to anyone who wants to challenge you, if you like, or you can make them challenge for it. You may not challenge for position.

If you make the chicken challenge for your number, you have to redraw the first win.

Chick Little: You spent much of your childhood claiming Armageddon was occurring. It never did. You have been in therapy for years over the complex you developed about the world ending. All it really did was make your messages of doom more elaborate and unusual. You frequently take things as bad omens and will obsess and become convinced that they indicate the end of the world. You are convinced the Wolf at the Door was one of the Four Wolves of the Apocalypse, but no one believes you. Then Charlie disappeared and Charlie was as dependable as they come! He was one of the chickens in the coop that had been there the longest and he was the one who knew what was going on most of the time. You really find yourself attracted to Darcy, but you don't know why. Maybe it's the exotic curves of her beak and the wiggle in her step. She insists that you cannot possibly like her as she is not a chicken, however you do not believe her. You have been feeling very tired the last few mornings, maybe it's all the work you have been doing identifying the end times.

The Other Chickens

Ace	He's pretty sharp, and one of the highest in the pecking order. He never believes you about anything. Of course no one ever believes you.
Boo	Your best friend, he hangs on your words and tells you things that seem to confirm that the end times have come to the coop.
Carhorn	He's as dumb as he is loud. And boy is he loud. He also ignores you for the most part.
Chick Little	That's you! Still the most foresighted chicken in existence!
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could kick your butt if he put a mind to it. He is easily distracted though, last time he caught you sneaking around, you said "Hey look! It's the Wolf of Doom!" and he spent an hour looking for him.
Darcy	The most beautiful chicken ever! She is perhaps the most exotic and wonderful chicken ever!
Floyd	He's a very strange one. You haven't figured it out, but he's up to something. Maybe he's the plant to let the wolves in!
Ginger	There's something going on here, there was a lot of strange feathers and animal tracks around her nest and she claims to not have noticed anything. An agent of the Wolves?
Henny	She has a lot of chicks, though she also keeps a pretty close eye on them, which is wonderful considering the wolves could come at anytime.

Henrietta	The widow! Ace and Carhorn seem dead set on marrying her, though she demands that her suitors be friendly toward her socially disinterested offspring, Junior. You fear that the wolves got Charlie.
Junior	Your rival for Darcy's affection. He is studying books about principles that chickens do not need, while you are trying to save chickendom!
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old English Bird. He thinks he has the wolf problem under control and can just explain it away.
Lyle	He has a secret, he likes sneak out of the coop at night. There is more, but you haven't figured it out yet. He may be an agent of the Wolves!
Penny	She has been talking to Priscilla a lot and is just as clueless about the Wolves of the apocalypse! You should warn her so she can get her chicks to safety.
Priscilla	She talks badly about everyone. You wonder if it wasn't chickens like her that caused the Wolves to come here as a divine punishment for the poor behavior of chickens everywhere.

The Pecking Order:

The pecking order is important to you because it gives you more credibility, However it is hard for you to ascend. You have to win the best 5 of 7 to win the challenge.

Carhorn: You are the alpha rooster, despite what that upstart Ace thinks. You keep the order in the coop and feed yard and keep the other roosters from taking over. It is of course the Pecking Order. Your right hand rooster was Charlie, but he disappeared the other night. Shortly before that, there was a Wolf at The Door. You are now courting Charlie's widow, Henrietta. You want the eggs without buying the hen, so to speak. However, she wants you to entertain her chick, Junior, to see how you two would get along. What do little boy chickens like to do? You need to make sure that the other chickens don't panic over the wolf at the door, since that would make them stop laying eggs. Farmer Brown just fixed up the coop and yard with new boards and chicken wire.

The Other Chickens

Ace	He's a sneaky one! Trying to get a leg up on you by wooing the widow (henrietta.) You will show him!
Boo	A strange chicken, afraid of everything. If there ever was an omega rooster, he is it!
Carhorn	That's you! Still the handsomest!
Chick Little	This guy is as paranoid as they get. He hangs around with Boo and they tend to make each other's issues get much worse. Another candidate for omega chicken.
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could kick your butt if he put a mind to it. He is easily distracted though, last time he challenged you, you said "Hey look! It's a giant egg!" and he spent an hour looking for it.
Darcy	Now, that's an ugly chicken! She gives you the heebies!
Floyd	He's a very strange one. He seems to have an affinity for talking to Junior, which you hope doesn't mean he's wooing the widow as well...
Ginger	She's kind of pretty but she makes you nervous, always looking at you with hungry eyes. A rooster could get trapped like that!
Henny	She does a good job of raising her chicks. She would be a sufficient replacement for the Widow.
Henrietta	The widow! A fine prize, and you know Charlie would have wanted you to be taking care of her and little Junior. If you could just reach the boy, you would be in like flint!

Junior	A strange boy, would rather read books than play ball. How strange is that?
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old Bird. He is constantly on you about manners and the proper way of doing things! It gets pretty old, pretty quick!
Lyle	Something is Shady about this one, he likes to sneak out at night. Been sleeping a lot during the day too.
Penny	Another suitable substitute for the widow if you can't outwit Ace. (like you will let that happen...)
Priscilla	Your ex, you wouldn't be caught dead with her again. shudder

The Pecking Order:

The pecking order is important to you, as you are currently the top chicken.

Ace: Since Charlie disappeared, you have moved up to second in the Pecking Order, and have your eyes on being Number One. You have been wooing Henrietta, Charlie's widow, since he disappeared a little while ago. The other night you found a glowing stick in the coop while everyone was panicking over the Wolf at the Door. You kept it secret and are now keeping it in reserve to help assure your dominance over the Coop. You have no idea what it does, but it must be awesome since it glows! Maybe if you showed it to Henrietta, she would finally stop paying attention to Carhorn. You want the eggs without buying the hen, so to speak. However, she wants you to entertain her chick, Junior, to see how you two would get along. What do little boy chickens like to do?

The Other Chickens

Ace	That's you! You rock!
Boo	A strange chicken, afraid of everything. If there ever was an omega rooster, he is it!
Carhorn	That loudmouth. He is grindingly annoying since Charlie left, and you want the number one spot. He is your rival for the widow's (henrietta's) attentions.
Chick Little	This guy is as paranoid as they get. He hangs around with Boo and they tend to make each other's issues get much worse. Another candidate for omega chicken.
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could kick your butt if he put a mind to it. He is easily distracted though, last time he challenged you, you said "Hey look! It's a fencepost!" and he spent an hour looking for it.
Darcy	Now, that's an ugly chicken! She gives you the heebies!
Floyd	He's a very strange one. He seems to have an affinity for talking to Junior, which you hope doesn't mean he's wooing the widow as well...
Ginger	She's kind of pretty but she makes you nervous, always looking at you with hungry eyes. A rooster could get trapped like that!
Henny	She does a good job of raising her chicks. She would be a sufficient replacement for the Widow.
Henrietta	The widow! A fine prize, and you know Charlie would have wanted you to be taking care of her and little Junior. If you could just reach the boy, you would be in like flint!

Junior	A strange boy, would rather read books than play ball. How strange is that?
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old Bird. He has been coaching you in "good old fashioned wooing". You think he favors you for the #1 bird spot.
Lyle	Something is Shady about this one, he likes to sneak out at night. Been sleeping a lot during the day too.
Penny	Your ex, you wouldn't be caught dead with her again. shudder
Priscilla	Another suitable substitute for the widow if you can't outwit Carhorn. (like you will let that happen...)

The Pecking Order:

The pecking order is important to you, as you are currently the #2 chicken.

Lord Cornelius Gloucester: You are the former Alpha Rooster. You were once a prize show chicken that Farmer Brown imported from England for his daughter's 4H club shows at the fairs. You won many prizes and were even the mascot for a human breakfast cereal made from corn. But all that was very long ago and the little girl grew up and forgot about you. Well, no matter, you were put in here with these less civilized chickens who do not know about the joys of Tea Time Scratching and the proper manners for dinnertime. You put up with Carhorn's loud mouth and poor manners mainly because you liked his second in charge, Charlie. Charlie has disappeared and Carhorn has gotten even louder and less mannered than ever. You hope Charlie comes back some day or maybe you can teach that young fellow, Ace, something about proper manners. There is also the matter of Junior, a very peculiar chick who is not quite right. Instead of doing things that young males do, he spends his time in books and doing arithmetic. You hope he doesn't grow up to be a weirdo like that Floyd character or that annoying but less likable Chick Little.

The Other Chickens

Ace	A fine young man, he will be a good alpha chicken some day. Soon you hope.
Boo	A strange chicken, afraid of everything. In England he wouldn't have been allowed to get out of the egg.
Carhorn	That loudmouth. He is grindingly annoying since Charlie left. His days of ruling the roost are soon to be over. (you hope)
Chick Little	This guy is as paranoid as they get. He hangs around with Boo and they tend to make each other's issues get much worse. Another weak egg.
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could take over the coop if he put a mind to it. He is easily distracted though, last time he challenged Ace, Ace said "Hey look! It's a fencepost!" and Clyde spent an hour looking for it.
Darcy	Now, that's an ugly chicken! She will never be a successful hen, unless she learns manners!
Floyd	He's a very strange one. He seems to have an affinity for talking to Junior, which is good because you don't understand a thing the boy says.
Ginger	She is one of those roving hens, out to sink her beak and claws into the first eligible rooster that she can get.
Henny	She does a good job of raising her chicks.

	She has manners and well behaved chicks. She is a good substitute for Henrietta for Ace
Henrietta	The widow! A fine prize, and you know Charlie would have wanted Ace to be taking care of her and little Junior. If ace could just figure out the boy, you would be in like flint!
Junior	A strange boy, would rather read books than play ball. How strange is that? He talks endlessly about math and engineering.
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old Bird. That's you!
Lyle	Lyle has been acting different lately, sleeping in very late and staying out late at night. If he isn't careful The Wolf at the door may get him.
Penny	She's nice but she listens too much to that busybody Priscilla. She could use some manners as well.
Priscilla	The perfect match for Carhorn, crass, lazy and fully lacking in manners.

The Pecking Order:

The pecking order is not really important to you, being an old chicken, but you can hold your own.

You may flip two cards on the second hand of a confrontation.

Henrietta: OH WOE! Your husband Charlie is missing! He disappeared in the night and never came back! The Wolf must have gotten him! Who is going to help you raise little Junior? Who will teach him how to become head of the coop? What about your needs? Who will help you scratch for corn and get gravel? You are the grieving widow who is down to business about providing for her needs and the needs of her chick. You are looking for a new rooster, but, he also has to be willing to be kind and interact with Junior, or else there is no way you can be with him.

The Other Chickens

Ace	He is a suitable replacement for Charlie. He is sweet and well mannered. You like him a lot but he doesn't seem to get on well with Junior.
Boo	Totally unsuitable for marriage or even a late night fling.... Total coward and not brave strong or handsome.
Carhorn	He is a suitable replacement for Charlie. He is the current Alpha rooster. He is brave and strong, but he lacks manners and shows no inclination to change.
Chick Little	Ew. This chicken caused the sky is falling panic of a few years ago. And he hangs around with that big coward Boo.
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could take over the coop if he had a mind to, however finding that mind would be hard. He might be easily manipulated but that would still leave the Issue of Junior, who Clyde wouldn't be able to keep up with mentally.
Darcy	That fake. She has to be a fake; you have never seen a bill or feet like that. She intentionally wiggles when she walks. No one really pays attention to her, except Junior, and that Chick Little. Junior is too good for her, so you should try to get her and chick together.
Floyd	He's a very strange one. He seems to have an affinity for talking to Junior, which is better than the other roosters. The downside is that he isn't very attractive and kind of strange.
Ginger	She's up to something...
Henny	She thinks she's better than everyone else always keeping her chicks just so, and being very proper in her ways.

Henrietta	That's you! Oh woe!
Junior	Your son is very absorbed in his books and learning. This is better than having him run the streets with bad chicks and getting into trouble.
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old Bird. He insists that things are never as good here as they were in England. He seems to be helping ace with his manners.
Lyle	He creeps you out. He has dead looking eyes and sleeps well into the day. His feathers are a mess most of the time.
Penny	A busybody. Between she and Priscilla, no one can keep any secrets. She's not as bad as Priscilla, but sometimes it's the company you keep. You are cordial on the surface to she and Priscilla.
Priscilla	The worst busybody in the coop. Unfit for mothering. You maintain cordial relations with her but really don't like her much.

The Pecking Order:

Junior: You are a shy introverted chick who prefers books to sports and would rather do math than play tag. Your dad, Charlie Chicken, disappeared the other night, and your mom says the wolf at the door got him. You think maybe there is another explanation. You suspect someone else of making your father disappear. It could be another chicken that wanted him out of the way, or perhaps it could have been someone from outside the coop. You really find yourself attracted to Darcy, but you don't know why. Maybe it's the exotic curves of her beak and the wiggle in her step. She insists that you cannot possibly like her as she is not a chicken; however you do not believe her. Your mom is being chased by the other roosters in the coop and making them spend time with you. They want you to play ball or other stuff; you just want to figure out who took your dad and then get back to learning about engineering.

The Other Chickens

Ace	He's a Nice guy. He doesn't get you. He's just trying to hard and not quite as smart as you.
Boo	This guy is scared of his own shadow. Not very bright either.
Carhorn	This guy is ok, he really doesn't get you. He's also obnoxious and rude.
Chick Little	This chicken caused the sky is falling panic of a few years ago. And he hangs around with that big coward Boo.
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could take over the coop if he had a mind to. He's not very bright.
Darcy	Shes Beautiful! Oh you would do whatever you can to get her attention! The most beautiful chicken you have ever seen.
Floyd	You like this guy. He's smart and likes some of the same stuff you do.. You wouldn't mind growing up to be like him.
Ginger	She's up to something and it probably is not good.
Henny	One of the Hens, so not your cup of tea.
Henrietta	Your mother. She is obsessed with getting you a father figure. You don't really need one.
Junior	That's you!
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old Bird. He insists that things are never as good here as they were in England. He has impeccable manners and is a good role model. You like him, even if he doesn't understand you completely.

Lyle	He creeps you out. He has dead looking eyes and sleeps well into the day. He tries to stay out of the direct sunlight.
Penny	Another hen. She is nice but you really don't like her friend Priscilla.
Priscilla	The worst busybody in the coop. You really don't like this hen.

The Pecking Order:

You don't care much about the pecking order but you can outsmart most of the chickens in the coop.

You may lay 2 cards to every one of theirs and choose the best one of the two.

Priscilla: You are a busybody hen. You know a little about everyone and a lot about nothing. You spend your day tending to your chicks and gossiping. If you don't hear any good gossip, you make some up. You suspect that Ace or Carhorn (or both) got rid of Charlie. You don't think Henrietta should be raising that chick alone, since he is so very strange already. You tend your flock of freshly hatched chicks and teach them how to scratch and peck for food. You hang around with Ginger a lot and sometimes she watches the chicks while you go nap in the coop. She can be so nice, but you talk about her too. You know she has a fur blanket for her nest and that she sometimes sneaks out and manages to get out of the coop and come back before most of the other chickens notice she is gone. You also know that she sometimes takes other hen's eggs so that she doesn't get in trouble for not laying her own. The other night, you saw Ace pick something up while everyone else was panicking over the Wolf at the door. You have also seen Floyd eating rocks and screws in addition to the grain and corn. He eats weird stuff all the time. Maybe he sustained a head injury as a small chick.

The Other Chickens

Ace	The next Alpha? Maybe you can distract him from chasing Henrietta
Boo	Totally unsuitable for marriage or even a late night fling.... Total coward and not brave strong or handsome.
Carhorn	Your Ex. He's the Alpha, so patching things up might be useful.
Chick Little	Ew. This chicken caused the sky is falling panic of a few years ago. And he hangs around with that big coward Boo.
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could take over the coop if he had a mind to, however finding that mind would be hard. He might be easily manipulated...
Darcy	That fake. She has to be a fake; you have never seen a bill or feet like that. She intentionally wiggles when she walks. No one really pays attention to her, except Junior, and that Chick Little.
Floyd	He's a very strange one. He doesn't appear to be overly concerned with the pecking order or even the hens in the yard, so that is very strange.
Ginger	She's up to something...
Henny	She thinks she's better than everyone else always keeping her chicks just so, and being very proper in her ways.
Henrietta	The widow. She's hogging all the attention from the roosters, and that's really not sitting well with you. You could cook up some rumors to get attention focused away from here.

Junior	A strange chicken.. he might wind up like that Chick Little some day.
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old Bird. He insists that things are never as good here as they were in England. He is a pompous but harmless windbag
Lyle	He creeps you out. He has dead looking eyes and sleeps well into the day. His feathers are a mess most of the time.
Penny	Penny is your protégée, she will make a good Hen in waiting while you rule the coop with your Alpha chicken.
Priscilla	That's you!

The Pecking Order:

Penny: You are a hen who tries to not be a busybody like that Priscilla, but sometimes you give in and gossip and such. You have a flock of young chicks that Priscilla has been telling you that Ginger will watch if you want to take a nap behind the hen house in the afternoon. Being a hen is such hard work, it sounds tempting, but you know Priscilla will talk about you behind your back if you do what she says. You have a crush on Ace, but you don't really want to see him become the Alpha rooster, since he would probably spend more time with Henrietta or (Heaven forbid!) Priscilla. Ace makes you swoon! You were very worried about losing your chicks to the Wolf at the Door, and have been obsessively counting them (when you remember) to make sure they are all here.

The Other Chickens

Ace	Your Ex. You have little interest in him. He leaves you alone and you leave him alone, though if he becomes the Alpha, you might want to get into his good graces.
Boo	A coward. He is not worth your time.
Carhorn	The current Alpha, you are trying to get his attention but Henrietta is hogging his attention.
Chick Little	Ew. This chicken caused the sky is falling panic of a few years ago. And he hangs around with that big coward Boo.
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could take over the coop if he had a mind to, however finding that mind would be hard. He might be easily manipulated....
Darcy	That fake. She has to be a fake; you have never seen a bill or feet like that. She intentionally wiggles when she walks. No one really pays attention to her, except Junior, and that Chick Little.
Floyd	He's a very strange one. He doesn't appear to be overly concerned with the pecking order or even the hens in the yard, so that is very strange.
Ginger	She's up to something...
Henny	She thinks she's better than everyone else always keeping her chicks just so, and being very proper in her ways.
Henrietta	The widow. She's hogging all the attention from the roosters, and that's really not sitting well with you.
Junior	A strange chicken.. he might wind up like that Chick Little some day.
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old Bird. He insists that things are never as good here as they were in England. He is a pompous but harmless windbag

Lyle	He used to be a nice guy, but something's been wrong lately.
Penny	That's you!
Priscilla	The worst busybody in the coop. She drags you into things and you find it hard to say no frequently.

The Pecking Order:

Darcy: You are not quite sure why you are here. You are very different from your feathered friends, and yet here you are in the chicken coop. You are a duck in a coop of chickens. You are fairly certain that you will be cooked for Christmas or another Holiday (or was that a goose?) You are fairly forgetful about things that are told to you and frequently have to remember that you are a duck. You tend to use the “walk & quack” method of determining if you are a duck or not. (If it walks like a duck and talks like a duck, then it would be a duck?) It does not help that the chickens think you are just another chicken. Chick Little and Junior have taken a shine to you, but you keep having to tell them that you are a duck, not a chicken. You have been feeling very tired in the mornings, and occasionally have a bit of blood on your neck feathers when you wake up.

The Other Chickens

Ace	He’s a nice guy, but not a duck. His manners keep getting better.
Boo	A strange chicken, afraid of everything.
Carhorn	That loudmouth. He is grindingly annoying since Charlie left.
Chick Little	This guy is as paranoid as they get. He also likes you, and you kind of like him. In that quirky friend you occasionally get corn and millet with kind of way.
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could take over the coop if he put a mind to it. He is easily distracted though, last time he challenged Ace, Ace said “Hey look! It’s a fencepost!” and Clyde spent an hour looking for it.
Darcy	That’s you! Pretty! And a Duck!
Floyd	He’s a very strange one. He seems to be snooping around a lot.
Ginger	She’s up to something...
Henny	She does a good job of raising her chicks. She has manners and well behaved chicks. A good egg.
Henrietta	The widow. She is at the center of attention right now, but you really think the roosters would be better off with someone like Henny
Junior	A cute boy who apparently likes you. He refuses to believe you are a chicken.
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	A well mannered gentleman from Britain. He emphasizes etiquette and propriety.
Lyle	Lyle has been acting different lately, sleeping in very late and staying out late at night. If he isn’t careful The Wolf at the door may get him.

Penny	She's nice but she listens too much to that busybody Priscilla. She could use some manners as well.
Priscilla	The perfect match for Carhorn, crass, lazy and fully lacking in manners.

The Pecking Order:

The pecking order is not really important to you, but you can hold your own.

Lyle: You have a dark secret. You are a vampire. You were out looking at the moon and stars, and you felt a sharp pain in your neck and felt something fly away from you in the darkness. You went back into the coop and noticed blood on your neck feathers. A few nights later you were outside and found you could turn into a small mouse sized creature with leathery wings and could see very sharply in the dark. You hunger for the blood of the other chickens sometimes, and sneak around at night to feed. You aren't sure what to think of the wolf at the door, but you know he makes you very nervous. You have found when you are nervous, scared or upset you turn into the small creature. You are attracted to Penny, but you are afraid that your disease will scare her off. You remember the night of the bright light and remember seeing Floyd fall into the coop, but you think that if you told too many other chickens, they would think you were crazy. You miss Charlie, he would know what to do if he were here.

The Other Chickens

Ace	A nice guy, if you get to know him better you may trust him as much as you trusted Charlie. You don't dare feed on him, he is too high in the pecking order.
Boo	A strange chicken, afraid of everything. You have fed on him in the last few weeks
Carhorn	That loudmouth. He is grindingly annoying since Charlie left. You don't dare feed on him, he is too high in the pecking order.
Chick Little	This guy is as paranoid as they get. He hangs around with Boo and they tend to make each other's issues get much worse. He is next on your list to feed on.
Clyde	Big. Dumb. Could take over the coop if he put a mind to it. He is easily distracted though, last time he challenged Ace, Ace said "Hey look! It's a fencepost!" and Clyde spent an hour looking for it. You won't feed on him for fear of getting beaten.
Darcy	You have been feeding on her, though her blood tastes different.
Floyd	He's a very strange one. You are reluctant to feed on him, since the other day you saw him eating big rocks.
Ginger	She is one of those roving hens, out to sink her beak and claws into the first eligible rooster that she can get. She may have a secret as well...
Henny	She does a good job of raising her chicks.

	She has manners and well behaved chicks. You have been feeding on her, but you feel really guilty about it,
Henrietta	She's already grieving, and you don't want to make matters worse for her, since she has a chick to raise.
Junior	A strange boy, would rather read books than play ball. How strange is that? He's a bit small and scrawny and you would likely kill him by feeding on him.
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old Bird. You worry he suspects you to be different. You won't feed on him due to his advanced age.
Lyle	That's you!
Penny	She's nice but she listens too much to that busybody Priscilla. She could be very sweet and kind, if you could only reach her...
Priscilla	The perfect match for Carhorn, crass, lazy and fully lacking in manners.

The Pecking Order:

The pecking order is not really important to you, but you can hold your own.

You may ignore the first win from your opponent of the 3 draws. If you lose 2 you still lose the fight.

Clyde: You are the largest chicken in the coop. However, you are not the brightest. You could easily win in the pecking order, but you are often fooled by the smarter chickens, and they use complex ideas to confuse you. Some of these are simple “Hey look! It’s Farmer Brown!” distractions, some have even used Math or riddles to distract you. You are not very bright and thus not very high on the pecking order. You have a crush on Priscilla, but it is as if she doesn’t know you are alive. You think she is pretty and very smart, mainly because she uses big words. You like most of the other chickens ok, you really wish you could be more like Charlie was, smart and brave.

The Other Chickens

Ace	A nice guy, if you get to know him better you may trust him as much as you trusted Charlie. He’s pretty smart, too!
Boo	A strange chicken, afraid of everything. He generally runs away when you come near.
Carhorn	That loudmouth. He is grindingly annoying since Charlie left. You don’t really like him. However he generally outsmarts you when you challenge him.
Chick Little	Strange guy. He thinks the sky is falling or something.
Clyde	That’s Clyde! Er. That’s you!
Darcy	She’s nice.
Floyd	He says things but you don’t understand what he’s saying most of the time. He generally outsmarts you.
Ginger	She’s nice.
Henny	You like her, but you also think she likes you.
Henrietta	You don’t see what the fuss are about, but if the other roosters want her, then you should be too.
Junior	Another chicken that makes words you don’t understand.
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old Bird. You worry he suspects you to be different. You won’t feed on him due to his advanced age.
Lyle	He stays away from you, but you are ok with that. He’s kind of creepy.
Penny	She’s nice.
Priscilla	You don’t like her much.

The Pecking Order:

The pecking order is not really important to you, but you can dominate it.

You may lay two cards for the first two draws, but the other player chooses which card is active.

Henny: You are a hen who knows what she wants, and you want Clyde. He is a gorgeous hunk of chicken who could really take care of you. He is brave and kind, even if he is not too bright. He has this silly crush on Priscilla and you now she would just use him for her own purposes against the other Hens and Roosters. You don't like her one bit, always making Ginger watch her chicks while she naps behind the coop instead of teaching her chicks to scratch. You take good care of your chicks, and they all know how to scratch for feed and how to survive the barnyard. There has been a lot of weird things happening in the coop lately, and it tends to make you worry about how safe it is to live here. There was the bright light in the middle of the night, then the wolf at the door, you and some of your fellow chickens have been feeling tired in the morning, and now Charlie is missing. This also doesn't take into account you have some very weird birds living in the coop with you.

The Other Chickens

Ace	He's a nice guy and you are friendly toward him. He's become more of a gentleman in recent weeks and that's a nice change.
Boo	A coward. He's afraid of something, well everything. You try to be friendly but really he is so scared you can't seem to get him to calm down.
Carhorn	The current Alpha, you really don't care for him. He is loud and rude. You think Ace or Clyde would be a better alpha.
Chick Little	This chicken caused the sky is falling panic of a few years ago, he got therapy but you don't think it worked.
Clyde	Big, strong and brave. You think he is keen and want him to notice you.
Darcy	That fake. She has to be a fake; you have never seen a bill or feet like that. She intentionally wiggles when she walks. No one really pays attention to her, except Junior, and that Chick Little.
Floyd	He's a very strange one. He doesn't appear to be overly concerned with the pecking order or even the hens in the yard, so that is very strange.
Ginger	She's up to something...
Henny	That's you!
Henrietta	The widow. She's getting all the attention from the roosters, and that's really not sitting well with you, especially since Clyde is paying a lot of attention to her as well...

Junior	A strange chicken.. he might wind up like that Chick Little some day.
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old Bird. He insists that things are never as good here as they were in England. He is a gentleman through and through.
Lyle	He used to be a nice guy, but something's been wrong lately.
Penny	She can be nice or she can be really unpleasant, it depends on how much time she has spent with Priscilla.
Priscilla	The worst busybody in the coop. She drags you into things and you find it hard to say no frequently.

The pecking order:

If Clyde asks you to help, you may choose the cards in his flips instead of his opponent. He also gets to flip a third hand.

Boo: You are chicken, hear you cower in the darkness. You are the very essence of chicken, and are afraid of your own shadow. You KNOW that there are strange animals amongst you. You interact with the other chickens knowing that they all have some deep dark secret. You tend to panic, especially when there is a wolf at the door, or there is any change in the environment that might be less than beneficial. Charlie's disappearance only serves as evidence that something is amiss! You tend to hang around Chick Little even though he makes you hyperventilate when he talks about the four wolves of the apocalypse.

The most frightening moments of the last few days have been the bright light in the night, the wolf at the door and the very scary small furry creature you saw flying through the night. Over the last week you have started waking up in the morning feeling very tired, and you suspect that something is feeding on you.

The Other Chickens

Ace	A nice guy, if you get to know him better you may trust him as much as you trusted Charlie. He's still a little scary..
Boo	That's You! EEP! Who said that???
Carhorn	He really scares you, always being so loud. Maybe he's a cannibal?
Chick Little	Your best friend... When will he sell you out to the zombie chicken masters?
Clyde	You tend to run from him. He is too big and scary to deal with.
Darcy	She's different! That can only mean she's an Alien!
Floyd	He's a very strange one. He must be one of the scientists for the bad chickens who want you dead...
Ginger	What is a Monkey doing here? She scares you very much!
Henny	She's nice but she doesn't realize that the bad guys are here and are going to get you all!
Henrietta	She's nice but she doesn't realize that the bad guys are here and are going to get you all! They already got Charlie!
Junior	A strange boy, would rather read books than play ball. How strange is that? He talks endlessly about math and engineering.
Lord Cornelius Gloucester	The tough old Bird. He's knows about the conspiracies and is probably in on them...
Lyle	He must be a zombie, with his dead eyes and pale beak!

Penny	She's nice but she doesn't realize that the bad guys are here and are going to get you all!
Priscilla	You hope the zombies get her first.

The Pecking Order:

The pecking order is not really important to you, but you can hold your own.

You may only turn two hands instead of three, if you lose one you lose.
