

The world is ending, at least as everyone knows it. With the Resonance Virus running rampant among the population and having developed an immunity to earlier cures, an assortment of the elite and those who happened to be near them at the time have been herded into bunkers across the nation. At one such bunker, scientists who were involved in the Resonance Project have been working around the clock on a new cure. As the hospital ward in the underground bunker is sealed, all anyone can pray for is that they will be among those who survive this apocalypse.

You have it. After weeks of work, searching for Resonance victims, nearly getting infected several times, long nights in the lab with Dr. Calo and a few others, you have it. You have found the cure for Resonance.

But there wasn't enough time. Resonance spread too fast. You couldn't start mass-producing the drug. You only have a small batch - enough for maybe 100 doses. Then you had to leave at once for the emergency quarantine bunker.

Now there are some thirty-odd people in the vault. Many of them probably have the Resonance virus. By now you probably have the Resonance virus. There is no time to lose. You must dose everyone immediately. These are thirty of the most powerful people in the country; as many of them as possible must be saved.

Afterwards... you don't want to think about what the world afterwards might look like. Everything you know will be obsolete. Everyone you knew will be dead or worse.

But there is always hope. You can rebuild. Even if it means starting from nothing, you can rebuild.