

Jojo Wagner

Proprietor, Carrot Glens

Las Sillas regional sales associate, Greenetics International

Greenetics is pure evil. You should know.

You were the last holdout in the Las Sillas region. They showed up at your farm one day brandishing a non-disclosure agreement. You were curious to hear what they had to say, so you signed. When they explained their so-called GEMINI project, you couldn't believe what you were hearing. Lie to people who thought they were buying good, honest food? Give them some genetically engineered crap instead? No, sir, you wouldn't have any part of it.

They tried to change your mind by offering you a huge amount of money, but you told them flat-out no. So they said goodbye and that you'd be sorry. You'd won!

Well, that is, until your crops started dying off one by one. No mistake: this was the work of those money-grubbing cowards. They came back a week later. At that point, you knew you had no choice.

So you kept coming to the farmer's market, just like always, and selling people on the benefits of good organic vegetables, and then handed them bags of body-altering trash. You knew it was wrong, but what else could you do?

Well, now you've figured it out. You've got a plan. You'll expose these creeps. If only you had someone willing to listen!

What You've Got

- A spray bottle - sure, it looks like water, but it's not. This baby is half of a test kit. Spray it on some produce, and...
- A flashlight - ...point this baby at it, and if it glows green you know you're dealing with a genuine genetically engineered crop.