When you were young, you suddenly became very sick. Your parents took you to the doctor and they ran all kinds of tests, and came back with conclusive results: you have celiac disease. Your body can't tolerate gluten.

They all felt sorry for you and told you it would be hard. But you've come to realize they were all wrong. Your disease is a blessing. Without any exposure to gluten, you've become much more intelligent, athletic, and attractive than those poor gluten-eating folks. How you wish everyone could be like you!

It's true that there are some faint glimmers of hope in the gluten-free movement, but at the most they're going to convince a small percentage of people to eat less gluten some of the time. No, you must get everyone to go gluten-free. And now, with your new membership in the GEMINI program and your association with Greenetics, you have the perfect chance.

You have spliced some of your own DNA into a formula using Greenetics' patented technology. Anyone who takes a dose of it will contract celiac disease and will have to go gluten-free for the rest of their lives. How lucky for them!

What You've Got

- A bottle of hand sanitizer - not really. It's your magic celiac formula!
