

Space dock 2-Delta-57-3

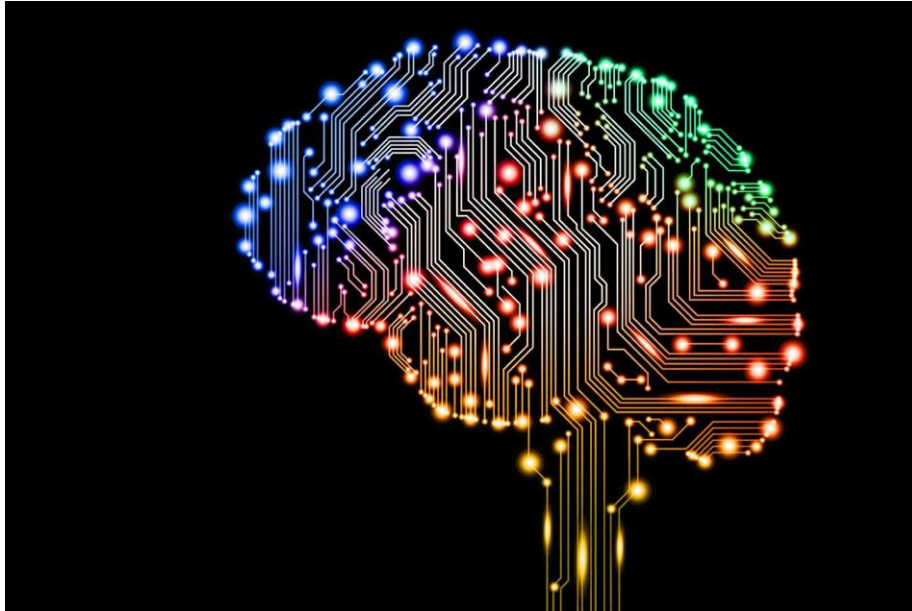

Name	Celena Rothschild
Story	Celena aids in smuggling operations at the space dock, mostly by copying security records and turning a blind eye. For this she makes a tidy amount with very little effort. She's aware most people working at the dock know she's involved in something, but she doesn't leave any physical evidence behind so considers herself secure. At the time of the murder, Celena had arranged security cameras to play a loop to allow the transport of some contraband. As this would have been revealed by anyone wanting to see the murder she has arranged for the recordings to go missing instead.
Profession	Facilitator at space dock 2-Delta-57-3
Persona	Living life in the fast lane, Celena is trying to make the most out of her current situation. She has an upper class background and comes around as educated and intelligent – but behind this first impression she's quite hollow and lost; filling this void with virtual experiences, drugs and expensive stuff.
Living situation	Surprisingly minimalistic living quarters, but Celena doesn't want to spend money on something she'd never show someone else.

Name	Jamshid Vakirosos
Story	Jamshid works managing the bots and other hardware around the space dock. He suspects his boss is doing something illegal due to the frequent changes in routines but its not something he's going to lose his job asking about. After all, he doesn't expect it to hit him – except now a cleaner bot he has programmed has apparently wiped a murder scene clean of evidence.
Profession	Technomancer at space dock 2-Delta-57-3
Persona	A rather quiet person, Jamshid is an introvert who prefers to hone his own skills. He's socially adept enough to know most people don't want to hear technical banter when they ask him questions but besides this he really prefer to keep to himself. Cyberware is something of a hobby of his, though he doesn't have a license and mostly read about it, not tinker about.
Living situation	Jamshid lives in a small cube in Sky City. He doesn't bring his job home, though he has some tech to maintain his cybernetic arm. He does however read a lot and has many old technical manuals stored in his apartment.

Name	Istariel Noroeth
Story	Istariel is responsible for local records and high level network communication at the space dock. She has the secret habit of collecting dirt on people working or passing through the dock – information which can be used for blackmail. The information is securely locked away but she can be prepared to leak some for payment. She can reveal that both the victim and the defendant were aware of smuggling happening at the dock but both decided to take no action. She can also reveal that the victim and the defendant had met on several occasions and that there were evidence of a romantic relationship.
Profession	Main cognitor at space dock 2-Delta-57-3
Persona	Having been in cryo for almost half a century Istariel is quite cold and calculating and clearly favors mind over body. She's not given up bodily life, however, but waits for certain conditions before she plans to return to Aladron. Meanwhile she tries to earn as much money as she can and gather useful intel for later use.
Living situation	Istariel's body is housed in the Chrystallorum while her mind is constricted to the network surrounding Sky Port Two, with privileges only at the particular dock.