

The Awful Truth

Character Information Sheet

Classification: Lesser

Summary: You are one of two beings that the Rose Queen has given some measure of power to. You embody the heat and light that comes with Summer. As Blaze, you have been responsible for helping the sleeping plants and creatures awake from their winter hibernation as well as encouraging the growth of the plants in the Garden.

You are also the being that nurtures visitors and inhabitants in the Garden and you are the closest council to the Rose Queen.

Details: You were the first to come to live in the Garden as a full time Denizen. You frequented the Garden for a number of years, many times at night to meet a paramour. One Day the paramour stopped coming, soon after you discovered the Garden and the Rose Queen. You were met by two Greaters and a woman you would come to know as The Rose Queen. Fire seared through your veins, your lungs burned, the world went dark and you were transformed. You awoke and found yourself looking into the eyes of a woman of strength and ability. She apologized for not asking your permission but she said she was lonely and wanted a companion. You felt violated and intruded upon even as you felt the power coursing through you. You tried to escape to The Real as soon as you could gain your feet, but felt yourself quickly fade, weaken and begin to disincorporate. You were pulled back at the last moment by The Rose Queen. You tried several other escapes before finally accepting that you were trapped in the Garden forever.

In time, you became more accepting of the position you held. You were not only the Rose Queen's companion, but also nurturing the Garden and expanding it. New beings and creature visited, including a young man who was in an incredible amount of pain. He couldn't stay long at first but he was able to stay longer and longer as he became more adept at getting to the garden. In time you could feel his life force slipping from him and you made the offer to have him become like you, and preserve the individual that he was. Two of the Greaters, Storm and Night were present to transform him. As painful as the process was for you, it was much more painful to watch. Rime soon recovered and has become a counterpart to you in the Garden.

You have nurtured many of the Denizens of the Garden and helped it become lush and powerful. One of the things you have done is helped create several Honored Guests and teach those who willing and without malice to stay in the Garden longer, (much as you did with Rime.)

The most memorable event to occur in the Garden was the destruction of a monster that hurt one of the children who frequented the Garden. On that day, the Blot was created. The Blot was one of the few instances where the Justice dispensed was meted out by all of the powers in the Rose Garden: Rime, yourself and The Rose Queen. The spot where he finally died became tainted and was forced into a separate part of the Garden. Since that day a piece of Darkness has grown in you like a cancer. It talks to you and asks you to do.. things. The last thing it asked of you was to push the Rose Queen into it, knowing it would destroy her and free you.

The Rose Queen has passed on. How do you know? You know because the Garden is fading, and the fact that you pushed her into The Blot. All of the years of anger and feelings of betrayal welled up and you finally found a way to destroy her. You would like nothing more to slip into oblivion but you know you need to find a new Rose Queen before the garden fades from existence, destroying your friends. Perhaps the new Queen can Free you. Several Greaters have arrived and are here to coronate a new Rose Queen, but you have only a few hours to locate the most suitable candidate. You and Rime are disqualified because of the nature of your creation. The Greaters have no interest in ruling the Garden as they have their own domains.
