

Aine Brennan Campbell

Journalist

(Henchman)

Keywords: Calms everyone right down, loves a good story, quick, seeks collective solutions, material girl.

Unprofessional relations with: Xiu.

Aine is born and raised in Belfast, North Ireland, and on the one hand she has an impressive wit and a strong will, but on the other hand lacks independence. She is more of a team player than a leader, and is actually pretty social. She has been able to master basically anything she has thrown herself at, but it has never been particularly important to her, exactly what it was, as long as it includes challenges and great company. It therefore made sense to become a journalist, with an expertise area of “whatever”, and the opportunity to give the articles just the right spin. Aine has worked for numerous publications, often as a freelancer. When she said yes to a ludicrous task, where her editor-in-chief joked that there probably was a conspiracy behind it all, well, it turned out to be actually true.

Aine has delivered results, and had plenty of challenge within the Organization, while she has also had the opportunity to travel the world, and meet new people. The colleagues always have an interesting story to tell, and the job entails lots of stories to be spun, angled, buried on 4chan, or off-hand mentioned in an obscure podcast. Aine is actually looking forward to finding out what the meaning of it all is, and what the story behind the conspiracy actually is, and most of all, what the Organization’s grand scheme entails.

In the meantime Aine has enjoyed that her news cycle runs a bit faster than anyone else on the globe, and that it’s the real news. SHE knows that Buzz Aldrin is getting paid (VERY well paid) by Games Workshop. That she can’t tell this to anyone doesn’t really bother her, as long as she gets to experience the stories first-hand.

Aine’s closest superior is Wang Xiu, who has a past as a chinese official. They have a good time with each other, and happened to go to Disneyland Paris one day, all expenses paid through the Organization credit card. Whoops. It was, however, extremely fun, so going forward they have covered each others’ backs doing various purchases (Such as high fashion, belgian chocolate, a Tesla, and a luxury condo in Belgrade near Tupac’s), all paid by the Organization. Obviously this is bad and embarrassing, but Aine really needed some new jewelry.

Pet peeves: An assignment without a story to talk about in the canteen afterwards, and assignments without any handling of the media.

Hates: Aine thinks the Manager Oliver Walker Kiro is a douchebag. The man is a huge nerd, arrogant, and only cares about computer stuff. He is also cocky in a way that reminds Aine of herself.

Chandler Balwan Maroof

Elite Soldier

(Henchman)

Keywords: Competitive, heart of gold, thrill-seeker, professional, gastronomé, practical

Unprofessional relations with: Isabella

After he joined the Organization, it struck Chandler that even though his primary ambition was the power to do good, it was incredibly neat to be able to sleep for an hour more each morning, and have a more relaxed relationship to colleagues and bosses. That latter part perhaps got a bit too relaxed, but that's just how things go sometimes.

In his service in the Indian military, Chandler was part of the elite unit Ghatak Platoon, where he was part of an "encounter" between Indian and Chinese soldiers in the Himalayas, which officially never happened. He has trained at the High Altitude Warfare School, and has taught at the Counter-Insurgency and Jungle Warfare School both in India. Needless to say, there weren't many places left to find new challenges, so he seized the opportunity when he got an offer to solve problems for the Organization. It has been very exciting (with a few issues), and it has given Chandler what he loves the most, which is new challenges. He is a thoughtful and intelligent man, good at thinking on his feet, and finding a good solution in the field.

Chandler has experienced wild adventures beyond all imagination. He has become part of an international team, where he gets to travel and indulge his thrill-seeking side, and gets very well compensated for his confidentiality. He is much less proud of his reaction, when one of the bosses hit on him. The problem was that Isabella is a very angry, and very beautiful columbian, and he had just shot a greenhouse full of orchids to pieces while suspended from a helicopter, so he was already high on adrenaline. He could nothing but accept, and tear the clothes off his boss. Since then they have carried on their covert encounters, where he has cooked, she has brought excellent South American wine, and they have had a lot of sex. Not particularly professional (particularly since it mostly happened during working hours), but hey, what can you do...

Chandler is a workhorse, and a fine one at that, because he loves the job, and is completely loyal to the Organization. Plus, after many years of military service, one grows to appreciate a breakfast which is precisely after your specifications, and a relaxing round of bowling after a hard day's work.

Pet Peeves: Problems with gear in connection to a mission, assignments without action, and administrative bullshit.

Hates: Chandler thinks the manager James Belanger is an idiot. He is much too focused on complete control, and doesn't understand that sometimes you have to improvise a solution in the field. Typical lawyer.

Albert d'Armilly

Operations Manager

(Henchman)

Keywords: Chill charisma, happy, extroverted, yuppie, partyboy, 'growth mindset', big picture.

Uprofessionelt forhold med: Oliver

Albert is a relaxed, and well-dressed frenchman of french and algerian/berber descent, from Lyon. Originally educated in HR and Marketing, he quickly got a career as an external consultant for a number of different companies. He has has a broad portfoile with companies in Singapore, Cape Town, and a number of other locations. One day he requested new opportunities on LinkedIn, and jokingly wrote that he wouldn't mind working for a global conspiracy, if the opportunity presented itself. Due to an error in LinkedIn's algorithm, his resumé was sent to the Organization, where they noted that he was just the man they needed to make sure guidelines were also followed in the field. So, Albert was awoken in the middle of the night, when someone knocked on the door, and offered him a job in the Organization. Albert said yes immediately, and a moment later he got aboard the soundless black helicopter, which had landed on his apartment complex, and was shipped off to his first assignment in Mexico.

Alber loves his job, and is very enthusiastic about finding new solutions, while ensuring that top-down strategies are followed in the field. Generally most would say Albert is a little too fond of... Everything, if he didn't have a very calm way of being friendly to everyone else. Albert doesn't know what the point of the Organization actually is, but he also doesn't worry much about it. He is an optimist, and figures everything is probably under control. He also enjoys staying motivated by endlessly complaining with the others in the canteen after work.

Somewhere along the way Albert let his enthusiasm run away with him, and went out for a night on the town in Mumbai with one his bosses, Oliver Walker Kiro. Since then they have been out and sampled Singapore's, Cario's, Boston's and Glasgow's nightlife from dusk till dawn, dancing and having fun, with fun being a large amounts of pills, white powder, smoke and coloured drinks. Of course they haven't told anyone how potentially compromising they've been. Albert has learnt how expensive it is too clean the smell of weed from a suit. Going out with Oliver was, however, fun as hell.

Pet peeves: Lack of guidelines, assignments that are too loose, and assignments without any administration.

Hates: Albert thinks the manager Isabella Bárbara Giraldo is a clown. She is much too focused on improvising and lies, instead of sticking to the script and properly planning.

Viktoria Abramowicz

Infiltrator

(Henchman)

Keywords: Dynamic, adrenaline junkie, ruthless, team player, Loyal.

Unprofessional relations with: James.

Viktoria is originally from Vladivostok near the Pacific, where she used to work in banking, until she used her knowledge for a motivated and dynamic career change to professional cat burglar. This went great, until she was caught in Tokyo with a large quantity of rubies which she couldn't account for.

There Viktoria was, considering another change in career, when a Canadian lawyer suddenly appeared and offered to get her free. He explained that she was now a part of the Organization, which could utilize her abilities. Viktoria immediately recognized an offer she couldn't refuse. When she accepted, he switched to fluent Japanese, and got her released in about 5 minutes. She has regret nothing. The work is exciting and varied, people stick to their agreements, the pay is good, and the benefits are NICE.

Viktoria abhors any kind of violence, but apart from that she is quite a ruthless adrenaline junkie. Few experiences can match the rush of breaking into NASA, Kellogg's and IMF without anyone discovering you. Viktoria has also discovered that the Organization has given her something quite new: A future, and a meaning with her existence. There are exciting tasks, intense planning, and the feeling of being part of something bigger. Viktoria used to never think about tomorrow, but today she has something great to get her out of bed.

That feeling of community is new to her, but it also makes her happy, even if it's just having lunch with someone in the canteen. The Organization has made her realize that she is pretty social, to her own surprise. Somewhere along the way James, the lawyer, asked for her help to "borrow" art from the Organization to his private home. As compensation he has covered for her, when she has "found" strange collectibles to bring home, such as an unused 6.5mm Carcano Rifle, seemingly owned by Lee Harvey Oswald. She thinks James is cool. It is wonderful when someone cares about the details.

Pet peeves: Lack of discretion during an assignment, boring tasks without action.

Hates: Viktoria thinks the manager Georgina Shahidi Pao is a massive idiot. Georgia focuses way too much on wasting time on lame symbolism, and cares nothing about subtlety.

Fazeela Elhillo Wilson

Financial Analyst

(Henchman)

Keywords: Cheerful, constructive, no fucks, improvising, lazy, you could have a beer with her if she drank alcohol.

Unprofessional relations with: Georgina.

Fazeela is originally from Sudan, and educated at the University of Khartoum. She did well for herself, was headhunted and living in Portland for three years. Hun was married within the year, chose to keep the surname after the divorce, and moved to Melbourne, Australia, where she lives most of the time. She just turned 30, and views everything like a big joke. Capitalism pretty much has heart attack every 20-30 years, so most of life is basically for the fun of it. It can, however, be very funny. Fazeelas genius ability to predict markets, was coincidentally discovered by a psychologist, who was infiltrating Fazeelas company. On her way out the door, she asked Fazeela, if she wanted to work for a globe-spanning conspiracy. Fazeela laughed aloud, and jokingly answered “sure”

After she has begun working for the Organization, Fazeela is starting to understand why things are as they are. She has ended up concluding that there is a lot to learn, and every time she thought she knew everything, something new and exciting shook things up. Fazeela is very curious to figure out, who actually runs the Organization, and what the point of it all is. She hopes it’s funny.

Despite how lightly Fazeela takes everything, she loves her work at the Organization. Even though they at times do some very weird and uncomfortable things, they do actually improve the world a lot more than what others have going on. There is something fun and rewarding in sharing the truth online, so people can laugh at it, and Fazeela gets the joy of making a positive change for other people, when she manipulates the financial markets. She is a cheerful and constructive type, who is always ready to find a good solution, and make partnerships work.

Somewhere along the way Fazeela got a bit stressed at work, so at Georgina’s initiative they have started having some more meetings, where they watch Netflix, eat cake, and take a nap during working hours.

Pet peeves: No leeway in finding an innovative solution to a mission, and assignments without financial oversight.

Hates: Fazeela thinks the manager Wang Xiu is a crypto-fascist snob. She is an insufferable know-it-all, and cares too much about states, and too little about markets.

Isabella Bárbara Giraldo

Head of Communications

(Manager)

Keywords: Lots of anger, environmentally conscious, passionate, lives on the edge, loves lying, politically conscious.

Unprofessional relations with: Chandler.

When not a manager in the Organization, Isabella gets joy from doing some good for animals and the environment, relaxes with a good book, and keeps a sort of loose watch on social media. Then she can recharge her batteries for work, where she enjoys the kick of making split-second decisions, and maintaining the greatest lie in the world. Just endless lies, every single day. That sparks joy.

She is originally from Columbia, where she worked as a speech-writer, and expert in media and crisis management. She then worked in Argentina and Mexico, before she was recruited by the Organization for about 15 years ago. Some philosophers speak of the love of Truth. Isabella loves nothing more than The Lie, and the constant balance of having a network of lies to manage. She is 100% addicted to the adrenaline of her job, and even though she is usually relaxed and agreeable, she has a fiery temper.

She just looooooves lying. That is why she “had” to pretend to be her own dead boss. She just found her leader, she assumes one of the founders of the organisation, dead one day, and started pretending to be that Head. It seemed like aliens were important to the Head, so that’s the basis of this new and exciting lie. If nothing else, under her supervision the Organization is now a lot more environmentally friendly.

Isabella has no idea if aliens actually exist, and she also doesn’t give a shit. As long as she can lie about the existence or non-existence, then she’s happy. Isabella felt the need for a little more spice in her private life, so she started having some extended meetings with the elite soldier Chandler, where she brought South American wine, he made some delicious Indian food, and they had a lot of sex. Isabella realizes this is, technically speaking, wildly unprofessional, but she enjoys their time together, and then she gets the opportunity for even more lying, so it all works out in the end.

Objective as Head: It’s all about Aliens

- ☐ Aliens must be blamed
- ☐ There must be a coverup averting blame from the Aliens.
- ☐ References to the X-Files, or the movie E.T.

James Belanger

Lawyer

(Manager)

Keywords: Control freak, proper, by-the-book, show-off, intelligent, loves art, arrogant, big picture, little empathy.

Unprofessional relations with: Viktoria

James doesn't actually know what the plan is for the conspiracies and lies of the Organization, but he does know what the point is: Things need to be managed. Both in a general sense, but particularly in his personal life. Belanger won his first victory in the Canadian supreme court at a very young age, and immediately became a hot-shot in the international courts. He was infamous among Canadian lawyers for having no care about the client. He just wanted control, and being right. This led to him rejecting people out-of-hand, if they didn't have a case. This just made him an even more attractive lawyer.

During all these lawsuits, Belanger started noticing more and more things that didn't make sense. Even when he accounted for the idiocy of most people, things just didn't make sense. There had to be some underlying agenda. That turned out to be the Organization, which promptly recruited him. James was great at his work, most of all because he truly savoured the feeling of everything being properly managed. He loves power, and the feeling of absolute control, and the Organization gives him loads of both. James is fundamentally a cautious and friendly man (especially when he gets his way), but does his best to hide any "soft" sides to his character.

As a lawyer, James has seen plenty of examples of disregulation leading to chaos, which in turn creates suffering. So when James realized that his boss was dead, he obviously took on the part of the boss. He has cultivated his interest for art by "borrowing" and "acquiring" numerous art pieces, which were just lying in the basements of the Organization without doing any good.

Shortly before, James had recruited a very talented cat burglar, Viktoria Abramowicz, who sat in a Japanese prison with an unmanaged life. James decided to help her out, in part because he could show off that he is fluent in Japanese. Since then she has helped him acquire wonderful art for his bedroom, and in return has gotten some oddities that she wanted to own. She is talented and efficient, so James and her help each other with "unlicensed borrowings", and covers for each other, even though they are of course completely loyal to the Organisation.

Goal as a Head: Control through intermediators

- ☐ A meaningless intermediary must be included in a given operation
- ☐ Unnecessary cooperation between two or more organizations must be included in the assignment
- ☐ There must be an ARMY of lawyers in the assignment! Armed to the teeth with paragraphs and protests

Oliver Walker Kiro

Hacker
(Manager)

Keywords: Partyboy, nerdy, overconfident, low self-esteem, daredevil, cheerful, intelligent, a little douchy, wants to digitize everything.

Unprofessional relations with: Albert

Very few have heard of the island Niue. It lies 2400 km northeast of New Zealand in the Pacific Ocean, and it is the birthplace of Oliver Walker. He learnt to sail at an early age, and was always driven to learn, experience new things, and find out how the world really works. It has always been important for him to better himself, and show that he was skilled, especially if he could also demonstrate that he was better than anyone else. He might have worse self-esteem, than he cares to admit.

Oliver got himself an education in computer science, and did a bunch of hacking in his spare time, which led to him discovering the Organization. He was promptly recruited. Everything went well, and Oliver got to show his worth. He “pwned” (undermined) “n00bs” (democracies) 24/7 (within a reasonable work-week), and discovered what interesting secrets central banks and states were hiding, not least the fun fact that McDonalds and BMW helped the Soviet Union send the dog Laika into space.

With success came promotion, and suddenly Oliver was a manager. One day he discovered that his boss had died. Since that day Oliver has pretended to be his own boss. Not that he knew what the Boss’ plan with the Organization actually was, but Oliver thinks he will figure it out soon. Despite of (perhaps because of) his low self-esteem, he is very proactive, and perhaps a bit of a daredevil. Some idiots might find him slightly annoying.

In the meantime lots of things are going on, and there is still lots to learn. So the point of it all will probably emerge, but until then it is important to maintain the facade, and pretend that everything is under control.

Oliver has become fond of partying, particularly with one of the Organizations Henchmen, Albert. They have explored the night-life of Singapore, Cairo, Boston, Glasgow and Mumbai, and submerged themselves in drugs, dance and alcohol. They haven’t told anyone of how unprofessional they’ve been, cuz it’s pretty embarrassing. Even though doing lines on a Happy Meal is a blast.

Goal as a Head: All knowledge is zeroes and ones.

- ☐ The Organization must design an app as part of the assignment.
- ☐ Oliver’s own AI must be included. It has free will, and free thought, but it’s much dumber than Oliver is willing to admit
- ☐ All communications during the assignment must be done by Fax

Wang Xiu

Chief of Staff (Manager)

Keywords: Educated, muted sarcasm, disciplined, vengeful, always willing to help, cultured, conspicuous consumption, arrogant.

Unprofessional relations with: Aine.

It is one thing how disciplined and intelligent you have to be, as a woman, to be educated and have a career as a Chinese official, but Xiu is a bit beyond exceptional. Not only did she manage that, she also managed to manipulate a wide range of politicians as she advanced in the system. Everything happened as she willed it. When she was approached by the Organization in connection to a train construction project, she jumped in head-first. Det was basically the same job she did before, but free of the communist party, with markedly less sexism, and she could travel the entire world on business class.

Everything about the organisation was fantastic. Grand plans, control of the broad strokes, and a focus on getting things done. Xiu kept on advancing, got more major tasks, and was constantly challenged. She was pleased, but not very surprised when she was made into a Manager. She had a feeling that she would soon be introduced to the point of the Organization, but then she found her boss, dead. Xiu decided to keep calm, and has impersonated the leader ever since. The dead leader had a lot of tasks which included travel, so Xiu has carried on sending people to weird places. That was probably the important bit.

She is a fundamentally chipper person, with a few spiteful tendencies. The Organization gave her the opportunity to take horrible vengeance on people who stepped on her over the years, and that kind of justice is always fun. All the while she still has a bit of professionalism intact, and she does want to see assignments succeed, and help her coworkers (most of the time, at least)

One of Xiu's strokes of genius was that she recruited the amazing journalist Aine Brennan Campbell, who was actually on the verge of discovering the Organization. They became close acquaintances, and then accidentally took a trip to Disneyland Paris, on an overdrawn Organization credit card. So it goes. It was quite a blast though, so ever since they have covered each others' tracks when purchasing various important things (such as high fashion, belgian chocolate, a Tesla, a luxury apartment in Belgrade close to Tupac's), all paid by the Organization. It is of course wrong and a bit embarrassing, but Xiu just had the need for a little luxury, particularly a sample of a variety of stripclubs.

Goal as a Head: Everything is better in an inconvenient location

- ☐ Major parts of the task must take place in or near Antarctica
- ☐ Major parts of the task must take place in the grand wasteland Patagonia in South America
- ☐ Major parts of the task must take place in Germany, some place far away from the highway, where the wi-fi connection sucks

Georgina Shahidi Pao

Empathic Controller
(Manager)

Keywords: Disciplined, zen, empathic, cynic, loves pop music, optimist, easy-going.

Unprofessional relations with: Fazeela.

Georgina is born and raised in Long Beach on the west coast of the USA. Even from an early age she knew she wanted to be a psychologist. As the child of a Cambodian and a Kurdish immigrant, she knew that her best opportunity was to get the military to pay for it. After having worked as a military psychologist for a couple of years, she changed tracks and became a “deprogrammer”, and helped people get out of cults. She made the public statement that she helped people who thought they knew how the world works. Shortly after she was recruited by the Organization.

Georgina had the sense that the world wasn’t quite in order, and the Organization kept confirming it to her. People create their own meanings from what they see, so in the end it was completely irrelevant if anything was in order. The important thing was to be there for other people, help them if you could, and make the world a slightly better place. Then everything would be fine. Georgina’s zen-attitude was very helpful about five years ago, when she realized that her boss had died. Georgina started impersonating the boss, and pretended that everything was fine in the organization. She wasn’t quite sure of the point of the plans were, but symbols and cultural references was obviously important.

So that is how Georgina carried on, filling plans with what she was, like, listening to at the time, and was fond of in general. She doesn’t take everything so seriously, even though she realizes that she depends on the Organization, and that it is fundamentally unstoppable. She is also optimistic, and keeps thinking that everything will be fine, and the meaning will suddenly emerge one day.

Georgina is equal parts Zen and Cynical, so to just get a couple of breaks in her busy days, she has started holding extra meetings with the genius financial analyst Fazeela, who she recruited herself. They mostly watch Netflix, eat cake, and take naps in spare rooms.

Goal as a Head: Symbols make the world go round

- ☐ References to the text in one or more songs of the amazing Selena Gomez must be part of the plan (pass the handout to a Henchman)
- ☐ There must be references to the currently most popular memes, which obviously says a lot about humanity and the collective unconscious
- ☐ References to the truth (that the Organization actually controls the world), must be inserted somewhere unimportant

GM Support sheet

When in doubt, keep in mind:

- * Play the assistant to highlight The Organization's bullshit
- * Encourage players to help build the world
- * You can't go wrong with jokes and complaining

Scenario Structure:

Plot inspiration

It may not be necessary, and I think you should try to come up with your own bad plans. However, here's some inspiration if needed:

Alex Jones must sell InfoWars, find God, pay off all his debt, and publicly apologize for everything.

The conflict of interest over Taiwan must be brought dangerously close to nuclear war.

The tobacco harvest will fail.

Montenegro's president will be replaced by a pro-alien doppelganger.

A disease that is mildly irritating must be manufactured and disseminated.

All AI art must become links to the website of the nearest art museum.

Evidence must be planted to cast doubt on the law of gravity.

Chemtrails must include more vitamin C to prevent global scurvy.

The next Olympics must be moved with short notice.

Nostradamus will be demonstratively refuted in the tabloid press.

Everyone will experience twice as many pop-ups on the internet, but with factual and potentially useful information.

Political instability will become retro-cool.

Grunge music targeting mothers specifically will become the new global cultural wave.

The Incas' cultivation methods and fashion style must be rediscovered and used again for the benefit of the climate.
