You're a young girl. Maybe sixteen years old, based on height and development. Your hair is white and long, your skin pale with deep black scars scattered around it. You are wearing a cloak of blue, hard fur, feathers and hair. It is clearly moreso the skin peeled from a creature than a garment. Beneath it hides remnants of simple, sturdy clothes that are nonetheless completely ragged and ruined.

Your body feels strange. Your throat feels clogged, toes numb and legs heavy. Yet you quick and strong. You have claws, teeth and organs from creatures hidden in the mantle. You have some means of defense.

Your mind is divided. Part of you feels overwhelmed and scared. Another part is brave. But most of all, there is a draining, heavy melancholy in your heart. You have lost something important. Things can never be the same again. You look at the fading world around you, wondering if that's is where the feeling originates, but no. The answer is hidden in forgotten memories.

The Others

You do not like Shai . You get a little angry just by looking at him. You have a feeling he's done something. Something to you. He does not really seem like an evil person when you judge him objectively, but the feeling in your gut says otherwise.

Dura scares you. She towers over you in her massive armor and is clearly strong. She can certainly protect you from the creatures, but you also have a feeling that she could turn her weapon against you at any moment.

Eto is probably the one you are most comfortable with. Maybe you had a good relationship before you lost your memory? You want to get to know him, understand what is going on with the stone and his state of mind. Maybe he once knew who you were and what has happened to you.
